Presented: 28 February, 2018

A foreword to the reader,

Many kind thanks to the Princeton Prospect Foundation for their continued work and to the Quadrangle Club for serving as host on this tremendous occasion. A sense of serendipity echoes in the air as our clubs gather to share remarks: updates on lives lived, bonds formed, and wonders shared. Yet too, as we join to celebrate changes enacted and felt, we are reminded of the communal task we have undertaken and the tremendous responsibility that we share; as time carries onwards, legacies are left behind. Let us leave legacies of compassion, social responsibility, and above all love for those we have the privilege to serve.

I. House Improvements

- The entirety of our room dedicated to the sport of Balls has been repainted with original murals designed and hand-stroked by our membership.
- In addition, the entrance room to our Women's bathroom has been officially designated as a "Ladies Lounge" (open to GNC / gender non-binary community members). This space contains a large vanity mirror, murals dedicated to strong females (including our own House Manager Emerita, Lillian Wilkins), as well as make-up supplies and feminine hygiene products.

- Aesthetic renovations of our wonderful home's facade were conducted in such a manner as to restore the building to its architectural glory – largely inspired by the Tudor Revival Movement<sup>1</sup>.

II. Community Engagement

- During our annual charity event, we raised $1,000 for the charity Womanspace – an organization dedicated to helping men, women, and families affected by domestic and sexual violence.
- We additionally held a Black History Month benefit concert which featured Vic Mensa as the headlining performer. The club raised over $8,000 for SoveMoneySaveLife and NoMoreNames, both charities focused on police brutality in the United States.

III. Sustainability

- We continue to compost and recycle.
- We continue to serve fourth course four nights a week. Fourth course is a meal served at 10:30pm in which members take leftovers from dinner and repurpose them into new meals. Fourth course cuts down on Terrace's food waste and teaches members creative skills to cook sustainably.
- We have installed cigarette butt recycling stations on all outdoor deck-like spaces. We hope other clubs follow suit, as it is inevitable that some students choose to smoke, despite the recent cultural advent of the JUUL vaping device.
- A pair of students has begun renovating our greenhouse and growing fresh teas and other medicinal herbs for the club's use, including but not limited to: Lion's Mane Mushrooms, Lemon Bergamot, Lavender, and Chamomile. By locally growing these herbs, we can reduce the amount that we need to source externally, reducing carbon emissions.
