Club Life

Charter has virtually welcomed 80+ new members into the club, broadening its welcoming and spirited atmosphere. We have added two new officer positions primarily dedicated to societal awareness and cultivating a club environment that supports members of all different backgrounds: the Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion Chair and the Accountability Chair. Our Accountability Chair is also a SHARE peer, and we also have a second SHARE peer among our newest members. We have also established Charter families, small groups with both old and new members who partake in challenges against other families and can get together virtually for hangouts. Charter Families also encourage members to abide by the University's social contract while still nurturing a close membership. Charter continues to prioritize the work-play lifestyle, offering weekly watch parties, weekly tea times, casino nights, game nights, and other all-club events.

Charter commits itself to giving members opportunities to learn about career tracks and development from our extensive alumni network. We have kicked off our Spring Career Discussions with COVID Conversations this past week: a chance to discuss testing policies and one alumni's COVID-19 rapid diagnostic start-up.

This past summer, Charter ran five virtual two-hour workshops devoted to discussing racial justice, prejudice, and equity on Princeton's campus, in our club, and in our respective lives. We now work towards developing a workshop form that is viable during the semester.

Technology

Our House Manager is working on developing a new Charter website with fresh new elements. Our Kitchen Managers continue to work towards electronic methods for ordering food once we are back on campus. In the club, members will still have access to computers, a printer, the Charter Chromebook, game consoles, and other technologies once the clubs open back up.

Service and Sustainability

Charter has held virtual fundraisers for Black Lives Matter and the New Jersey Institute for Social Justice, raising over $2,000 collectively. The club also plans to develop service connections in the surrounding community (e.g., Arm and Arm) and have future fundraisers for donations.
