Princeton Prospect Foundational Report
Terrace F. Club

Technology/Study spaces:

- We've installed two Sonos speakers and light dimmers in the main dining room in order to create a more ambient atmosphere during dinner. We have also purchased a television equipped with a Wii and Xbox in the Green Room to provide members with another option to destress and relax from long days on campus.
- We have converted the Green Room, which used to be only open to hired performers on tap nights, into a space for members that is now open 24/7. This new space expands members' access to the house, preventing overflow in our other lounge areas.
- We have added a mural in the Ladies Lounge (a room connected to the women's room) in order to encourage members to make use of the space as a study area and chilling den. The mural was painted by a former Terrace officer, which we hope will encourage members to think about and enact ways in which they can make a lasting imprint on the club.

Community Involvement

- We held our annual charity event in which we raised $1,200 for a member of our kitchen staff who was pushed out of a third story window last summer.
- We have opened up our house to student groups as a meeting space. Use of our house is open to all student groups, even those whose members have no affiliation with Terrace. This new policy enacts our foundational mission of inclusivity while also shouldering the University's burden of providing students with meeting spaces.
- Our music chair has booked student performers in every single tap night show of the spring semester thus far. In just three weeks, we have employed twelve Princeton students and alumni as musical acts.
- Currently, Terrace employs forty students with jobs meal checking, serving food, and cooking. We have also been able to expand our financial aid options by allowing members to work in order to cover the cost of dues.

Sustainability

- We continue to compost and recycle.
- We continue to serve fourth course four nights a week. Fourth course is a meal served at 10:30pm in which members take leftovers from dinner and repurpose them into new meals. Fourth course cuts down on Terrace's food waste and teaches members creative skills to cook sustainably.

Intellectual/Career growth

- In December, our social chair threw a members night for the 30th anniversary of the Great Terrace Fire. This members night featured members reading original poems about Terrace written for the occasion.
- Our social chair and our former treasurer started a reading and art group called Terrace F(art) club where members discuss poems and collaborate on art projects.
- One of our members has started a historiography project to create a digitized archive of Terrace's history.
- Several new and old members in the BSE program have designed "Tools of the Future", combining their academic interests with the club's utilitarian needs.
- A large contingent of our members have expressed interest in working in the hospitality industry after graduation. To develop these skills, we have offered beer making lessons, dj lessons, chair positions involved with the maintenance of food, scheduling, and booking professional performers, opportunities to work in the kitchen, and contacts of alumni in the hospitality industry.
