Club Life

Charter remains a place where students can thrive socially and academically. Our dining rooms are frequented by faculty and alumni, and weekly forum tables encourage open discussion among members. Throughout the club, Charter members study throughout the day in a variety of spaces. We hold a range of events including study breaks, movie and TV viewings, and live performances. Our upcoming social calendar includes our third annual Programming Cup, game tournaments, and House Parties.

Technology

Our popular computer cluster has six multi-monitor computers with top-of-the-line graphics and processors that are maintained regularly by our Tech Chair. In addition, Charter introduced a new website last semester at www.princetoncharterclub.org. It is built and maintained by Quan Zhou '15, former Vice President of the Princeton Charter Club, and our current Tech Chair, Will Rose '16. The website is actively being used by the membership and potential new members. The website focuses on improving the sophomore and member experience with Club events and menus.

Service and Sustainability

In February, Charter hosted one of our favorite events, the Chartan Auction. This event encourages club members, especially our new sophomores, to get to interact and get to know each other in addition to raising money for charity. This semester, the auction raised over $1,500 that was donated to our club's community partner Isles. Founded in 1981 by a Princeton graduate, Isles is an organization focused on community development and environmental stewardship in Trenton. We hope to surpass this amount next year, and to continue to work with Isles on different projects in order to continue to develop a relationship between the organization and the club. In addition, to improve Charter's carbon footprint, our Vice-President and Sustainability Chair worked together to invest in travel mugs, that were given away to members at Winter Formals last semester, in order to promote limited use of paper cups for tea and coffee. Our members are also actively involved in the projects of the ICC.

Upcoming Renovations

Charter's Grad Board is working with Ford3 Architects to develop plans for renovating the Clubhouse in the upcoming years. The designs include additions to make the club fully ADA compliant and to improve the ventilation throughout the club, which will improve the membership experience for students and the professional experience for staff.
